Mrs Carr's Class

This Week's Newsletter 15.2.19

This Week:

In English the children have made lovely valentine cards - they composed then wrote their own greeting! The children also wrote welsh poems, taking inspiration from images from around Wales.

In Maths the children have been taking away one from a larger number using different strategies such as multilink, fingers and a numberline.

They also practiced writing a corresponding number sentence.

In Topic the children have been predicting the outcome of a science experiment - what places in the classroom would ice melt quicker/slower? We then recorded the outcome...they have also been sorting reptiles using their own criteria.

Next week:

Literacy - The children will be creating a mixed up reptile and describing its features.

In Maths - The children will be ordering numbers.

In Topic - the children will be making paper chain snakes and learning all about the island of Madagascar....
